

Herrera New Construction

Affordable home built with ICF method

Affordable home built with insulated concrete foam blocks

The insulated concrete foam building method is one of the best building styles to create a house that is strong, quiet and highly energy efficient.

This house was built as part of a community grant program. More and more housing authorities are choosing this method of building.

The walls have approximately an R-25 value. It is a great product for energy efficiency, strength and offers a buffer from outside noise.

